

FAMOUS STUDENTS MAKE UP CLASSES IN WORLD AFFAIRS

Williams College Begins Unique Study July 27.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 18.—Maurice Casenave, French High Commissioner to the United States, will be a regular enrolled member of the new Institute of Politics which opens its session at Williams College on July 27 for a month's study of international affairs, with statesmen of world-wide reputation on its staff of lecturers.

Mr. Casenave and Maj. J. A. de Sanchis, one of the French High Commission's expert economists, come to the Institute to participate in the round-table on "reparations," sitting twice a week throughout August, under the chairmanship of Norman H. Davis, former Under-Secretary of State.

Professors Head List.
This announcement was a feature of the advance registration list given out here by Prof. Walter W. McLaren, chief secretary of the conferences. It showed that, in addition to representatives of the army and navy, bankers and lawyers, editors, authors and statesmen, the Institute will have a staff of professors, assistant professors and instructors from more than thirty-five colleges and universities, with President Charles F. Thwing of Western Reserve the highest ranking professional "student" in point of executive authority.

From the United States army will come Brig. Gen. Harry H. Bandholtz, Lieut. Col. Stanley D. Embick, of the General Staff, Col. Pierrepoint B. Noyes, former United States commissioner on the Rhine-land High Commission, is officially registered. The editors, authors and publicists include Simeon Strunsky, of the New York Evening Post; Elias R. Snodgrass, writer of several books on Chinese and Japanese matters; Hamilton Fish Armstrong, the Rev. G. Monroe Royce, and the Rev. John H. Denison, formerly of Boston.

The group from the colleges and universities comprises twenty-two full professors, six assistant professors and nine instructors. Of course, these men, and the women attending, will rather be fellow-counselors than "students" in the ordinary academic sense. But the fact remains that they will rather each morning during August read practical studies and debate in round-table conferences, under able leadership, on such subjects as "Tariffs and Tariff Questions," "Frank W. Taussig, chairman; "Unsettled Questions in International Law," George Grafton Wilson, and "Latin-American Questions," L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union. Moreover, they will, for the most part, take rooms in the college dormitories, and dine together in the Williams Commons.

Father McKeefree Dies.
RICHMOND, Va., July 18.—Fr. Hugh McKeefree, pastor of St. Patrick's Church here, died yesterday. He celebrated his golden jubilee in priesthood June 23, with 100 priests from the diocese present at a banquet and religious ceremonies. Affectionately called "Grand Old Priest of Church Hill," known throughout Virginia and the South as church and school builder, he was likened by Bishop O'Connell, in an eulogistic address at the golden jubilee banquet, as "Lion of the Fold of Judea."

Tight New Shoes Prove Undoing Of Bold Hold-up Man

CHICAGO, July 18.—"You wish a pair of shoes?" queried Fred Sanson, of the New York Shoe Company, as he rubbed his hands and pulled the customary shop smile on a man who had just arrived.

"Yes," replied the customer. "I wear a 6 double A and that's what I want."

"I knew he was married," Clerk Sanson told the judge today, "because his socks were full of holes. I also thought he was a genius or a liar, for the measuring rule showed he required a 9 shoe on a D last."

After much maneuvering, I managed to squeeze his feet into a pair of 7-D's. He walked up and down the green carpet, admitting with obvious agony that the shoes would do.

"Then, your honor, he drew a magazine pistol and demanded that we turn over the contents of the cash register. Another customer came in and I dropped behind a row of chairs, crawled to the street door and ran, yelling for the police."

The robber, who has been identified as Morris Biddle, of Indianapolis, attempted to get away, but the tight shoes were his undoing. They gave him such pain that he was easily overtaken.

BRIG. GEN. ROBERTS DIES IN OSSINING

NEW YORK, July 18.—Brig. Gen. Ben K. Roberts, U. S. A., retired, died in Ossining, while visiting friends. He was stricken suddenly with summer complaint.

Ethan Allen when he took Fort Ticonderoga from the British in the Revolutionary war. Gen. Roberts made his home in Washington, D. C. His widow survives him.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Christian Lucas, whose guest he was when he died. The body was shipped yesterday to Manchester, Vt., where it will be buried today.
